

Bahareh Ameri is an Orff music specialist and Music 4 Little Ones teacher at University Settlement.

Born and raised in Iran, she has been involved with music from a young age when she started playing piano. After receiving a bachelor's in science, she continued exploring the world of music by studying piano and vocals, became a choral singer and started teaching the piano to children.

Bahareh has studied music pedagogy and completed various courses and workshops at the Royal Conservatory of Music and The San Francisco International Orff Institute to become a Children's Music Specialist.

Highlights of her career include faculty membership at the Royal Conservatory of Music, teaching and developing music curriculum in Farsi at a centre for Persian Immersion and Cultural Education, co-founding a music project for child labourers in Iran, contribution to music curriculum development in the Aga Khan Museum Resources Project, teaching music in different private and public schools in Toronto, board membership in Carl Orff Canada, leading camps, providing music workshops and organizing group children's music classes as well as coordinating and supervising public performances.

Bahareh is an enthusiastic children's music instructor, who provides a positive and creative environment to motivate children in their learning.
